

Jeff Hiserman, PT Biography

I am a Physical Therapist with over 33 years of experience (over 20 years in an Occupational Health), who has treated thousands of patients with musculoskeletal dysfunctions (MSDs), done hundreds of pre-placement/post-offer screens, over 200 Functional Capacity Evaluations, as well as, dozens of job site analyses.

Additionally, since 1998, I have done Human Factors/Ergonomic consulting for light and heavy manufacturing, aviation, insurance, health care, and defense contractor companies, including designing annual physical testing and stretching programs.

I am a full member in the Human Factors and Ergonomics Society, certified by the International Association of Safety Professionals in their Workplace Ergonomics Course, and have presented on Human Factors, Ergonomics, and Occupational Health topics at numerous conferences and businesses.

My research interests are the use of post offer work screens and their effectiveness in injury prevention and practicality for use as annual assessment for fit for duty.

I would be glad to write some reviews, at this time I am not doing any research at the college. I can also share my knowledge in ergonomics, occupational medicine, and human factors.
