Currently, he is working as a full time lecturer at the department of information technology, Lebanese French University, Erbil, Iraq. Finally, he has authored many articles which are published in international journals of high repute.”

Secondly, I would like to update my preferred areas for research to:

Thirdly, please delete the google scholar link from the web page that has my info in your journal’s website because, when you search for it with google, it shows that my google scholar profile comes from your journal’s website but not from google. Please see Figure 1 for this matter.
